TAR HEELS DEFEAT TIGERS

Working the line-shift play used by Georgia Tech, and showing splendid interference the University of North Carolina defeated Clemson Saturday 9 to 7. The Tar Heels' victory was well earned. They gained more ground by far than did the Clemson Tigers, and in addition Harris was outpunted. Only during the second quarter were The Tigers able to gain through the Carolina line. Clemson was outweighed about nine pounds to the man. The Carolina backfield being about ten to fifteen pounds heavier to the man than that of The Tigers. Off tackle was where most of the Tar Heels' plays were directed, and they seldom failed to gain ground; Tayloe and McDonald carrying the ball most of the time. Carolina tried the forward pass many times, and during the first quarter they worked it with marked success. Dave Tayloe, McDonald and Long played splendidly in the back field. Love put up a nice game at end.

The Tigers play was disappointing. Our offense which started off so promisingly in the second quarter, failed completely in the second half. It was the old line-shift play however, that had the Tiger line buffaloed. Time after time after the Carolina line shifted a Clemson man would get off-side and the Tar Heels would be presented with a first down. The Clemson line did not hold as well as in previous games, and did not allow Harris the proper time to get off his kicks—a serious handicap to any punter. The entire team was off in their tackling. For Clemson, Harris, Randle, and Major put up the best game. "Cat" completely out played the North Carolina center, and broke up many plays. Major played a good defensive game, while it was due to "Bill" Harris that our only touch down was made possible.

The work of the officials was the poorest seen at any game this season. The game in detail:

First Quarter.

Littlejohn kicks off 40 yds. to Tayloe who returns to Clemson's 40 yard line. Tayloe no gain; Reid no gain; D. Tayloe made 15 yds. around right end for first down. Forward pass brings the ball to Clemson's 5 yd. line; Carolina penalized 5 yds. for off side; Tayloe makes three through the line; Boshmammer fails to gain; Tayloe fumbles and loses 6 yds.; Forward pass fails; Carolina penalized 15 yds. for holding. Ball goes over. Harris makes three thru the line and then kicks to mid-field, and Carolina returns to Clemson's 20 yard line. Forward pass fails; McDonald makes 3 around rt. end; Clemson penalized for off side; Reid makes first down; Carolina penalized 5 yds. for off side; A forward pass Reid to Love places ball on our 5 yd. line. Carolina fails to gain on two plays and is then penalized 15 yds. for holding. Ball goes over. Harris kicks out of bounds on Clemson's 40 yd. line. Harris breaks up a Carolina forward pass, and Major breaks up another one. Long kicks about 25 yds. to McMillan who makes no return. Harris kicks to Long, and it is Carolina's ball on Clemson's 35 yd. line. McDonald makes 3 around rt. end; Long fails to gain through the line; Forward pass Reid to McDonald nets 15 yards; no gain through the line; no gain for McDonald around rt. end. Reid makes 3 thru center. The quarter ends with the ball in North Carolina's

HONORED MEN VISIT CLEMSON

Members of the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate were in Columbia yesterday on their way home after a trip of two days to Clemson College. J. T. Liles of Orangeburg, chairman of the ways and means committee, was very much impressed with the work of the college.

"It is to be regretted," said Mr. Liles, "that all South Carolinians can not visit Clemson College. The citizens of the State, generally, have a fair knowledge and appreciation of the great work this great institution is doing, but a visit to the college will prove a revealing experience that will not only dissipate any prejudice that may exist, but will create a loyalty and pride in the hearts of those who value the kind of educational training that best equips for service in the lines of endeavor that are open to the majority of our people."

"Seventeen members of the ways and means committee were at the college on November 2 and 3 and practically every minute of 20 hours was occupied in an inspection of the various departments."

"It is difficult in an interview to convey an idea of the great scope of the work of Clemson, but the committee was enabled to gain a qualitative conception of what is being undertaken and accomplished."

"The visitor can not fail to be impressed with the qualities and fitness of the men who comprise the faculty. The financial system of the college has been so perfected that extravagance is almost impossible. Every item of expense must be justified before it is approved. There has been no extravagance in expenditures in building up and maintaining the institution."

"There has been a need for every building erected, every department provided, every extension made and all of these have been more than justified by the results accomplished."

"Clemson college has not simply justified its establishment, it has filled an imperative need and its benefits have extended into every home in South Carolina. Its present and future value to the State can not be overestimated."—The State.

The Finance Committee of the senate visited Clemson on the two days following the visit of the ways and means committee, and while here expressed their views in practically the same terms as in the above article. These visits were made at the invitation of President Riggs, who was authorized by the Board of Trustees to extend such an invitation.

DR. H. N. SNYDER LECTURES Y.M.C.A.

It was the privilege of several hundred to hear the president of Wofford College Sunday night. His well treated subject was "Training for the Big Team." He discussed the athletic team from the view point of one on the side line, mentioning the sacrifices one must make, the orders that must be taken from the coach, captains, etc., and the rules necessary for one to learn. He spoke of the team as a machine that could not operate without its full force and the desire of each to win not for selfish glories but for the team and his alma mater.

Dr. Snyder mentioned the team larger than the football or the base ball teams, that of social, industrial, moral and religious workers, which all of us should join. To make this team one must undergo a training more strenuous than that required to make the athletic teams. And each one of us is sent here to shape ourselves into material fit to go into our shops, to our farms, or offices. The big ideas gathered here, directed by our creator, should be taken home to those about us.

ADDITIONS TO RULES.

The General Faculty has adopted the following additions to the rules governing re-examinations and promotions:

1. That all conditions which this Committee have not allowed to be removed by examination be scheduled before advanced work.

2. That beginning with the session 1916-1917, no student who is a candidate for a degree be allowed to take any Senior work until all conditions below the Junior Class be removed.

3. That in order to graduate with their class, Seniors must remove all conditions not later than 6 P. M., Saturday preceding Commencement Sunday.

4. That the rules governing re-examinations apply to Seniors as well as to under classmen, except that the re-examinations granted shall be held during the last week of the Session.

"I think Mr. Raymond Robins is one of the most interesting men in public life in America today. He combines a detailed knowledge of public affairs with a very strong and true spiritual insight. He is exactly the sort of person to be extremely valuable to serious college men."—Norman Hapgood, Editor Harper's Weekly.

Find the bright side of things and help others to get sight of it also. This is the only and surest way to be cheerful and happy.

PRESIDENT CURRELL'S REPLY

In Sunday's "State" appeared Dr. Currell's reply to the recent article on the "One Year Rule" in The Tiger. In the same paper appeared the article itself; but since we know the contents of the article, we are concerned only with the reply.

President Currell said:

"Dean L. T. Baker and the president of the university began an investigation immediately after the Newberry game, when we received our first intimation that any ineligible men were candidates for the university football squad."

"Two of these players were found just before that game to be ineligible under S. I. A. A. rules and their names were at once withdrawn from our list of men eligible for S. I. A. A. games. Another student's credentials were found to be unsatisfactory, hence he was dropped from the university rolls, just before the Clemson game. Another player, apparently fearing that he would share the same fate, left the institution immediately after the Clemson game, in which he had played less than five minutes."

"Against other young men who are mentioned in the list published by The Tiger there are vague charges, none of which have yet been substantiated. These allegations, however, are carefully investigated. Our findings in the case of four of the men in the Clemson list leave no doubt as to their eligibility."

"Thus there remains but two men as to whom there is as yet some doubt. We are making a diligent and earnest inquiry into the whole matter. Such work requires time and just now we are not in possession of all the evidence. Therefore we cannot at the moment discuss the question in detail."

"The university authorities prefer not to make any damaging charges against any young men who either are or may have been connected with it, especially by using their names in any public controversy. Such personalities are beneath the dignity of any institution of learning. The university believes in the honor system and therefore takes a man's word until he is proved beyond doubt to have falsified. As soon as this proof reaches the authorities, the student is dismissed. While two of the young men did apparently misrepresent themselves on eligibility blanks, they have satisfied the university authorities that their statement was the result of misunderstanding as to the rating in inter-collegiate athletics of the college from which they came."

"In conclusion, I would say that if we have blundered, it is because both the president and the dean are inexperienced in playing the role of sleuth."

EDITORIAL.

In last week's Tiger, we published the following paragraph:

"Since Dr. Riggs put 'rig' in rigorous and Dr. Currell put 'cur' in curriculum, lots of Carolina boys' daddies wish they had put 'son' in Clemson."

Dr. Riggs thinks that the reference to Dr. Currell may be regarded by some as discourteous. The editor of The Tiger wishes to disclaim any discourtesy to Dr. Currell, for whom Clemson students have the highest respect, and to plead guilty of having copied the expression, "Dr. Riggs put 'rig' in rigorous and Dr. Currell put 'cur' in curriculum," from The Carolina Gamecock of October 26, 1915.

Auburn has installed the Honor Committee. The honor system has had excellent results there, and there is no good reason why we could not install it here. It would certainly do more to build up a fine college spirit and loyalty, than any other one thing.—Florida Alligator.

Amen. Let's join 'em.

Dr. D. B. Johnson and the Winthrop faculty have won the heartiest feeling of friendship from the Carolina student body.—The Gamecock.

Such phraseology smacks of age around these parts.

The sixteenth son of President Yuan Shi Kai was born today. The president now has thirty-one children.—Atlanta Constitution.

He's the guy that put "pop" in population.

Davidson agreed to go to Columbia and play Carolina a game of foot-ball free of charge if any member of the University faculty would certify that every man on the Carolina team was eligible to play under the contract signed, and Carolina is "mum."

Is any stronger evidence necessary?

Davidson seniors are to dedicate their annual, "Quips and Cranks," to President Wilson, who was once a student at Davidson for a year.

Raymond Robins is a very unusual character. He is one of those rare individuals whose personal experiences seem to have the depth and range of a dozen important persons, and his career reads like a "Fairy Tale." He came from the Klondikes, to that terrible seventeenth ward in the city of Chicago where 80,000 people live on top of each other in the limited area of one square mile, and where nineteen different nationalities are found in large numbers; and he has done some modern day miracles among those people. This has been his chief job for the past fifteen years, and at the same time he has had a strong hand in many of the national labor problems.

We Clemson men are fortunate. He is coming here to speak to us. We will get to know the man personally, hear his life stories, learn of the present-day social struggles from a man in the thick of the fight, and from one who has the power and fascination of a gifted thinker and speaker.

If you have faith, preach it; if you have doubts, bury them; if you have joy, share it; if you have sorrow, bear it.

TIGER EDITORIAL PUBLISHED IN "THE STATE."

The editorial from last week's Tiger entitled "The Necessity of a One Year Residence Rule for Football Players" was reproduced in full in Sunday's "State" under the caption, "Makes Grave Charge Against the University."

First, we would say that the article in The Tiger last week made no "grave charge against the University." The facts as taken from the eligibility certificates were given, and the public mind left to draw its own conclusions. There is quite a difference between making "grave charges" and stating plain, undeniable facts.

The Tiger editorial was not written to stir up a controversy between the two institutions; but to advocate an athletic principle, reveal a situation, and point out the remedy that lies in the adoption of the "one year rule."

Every statement of fact made in the editorial can be substantiated from the records; but that does not mean, as the former editorial clearly states, that the faculty and student body of the University are responsible for the creation of conditions out of which the trouble grew. In fact, we feel sure that there is an outside source of the trouble.

The distinguished president of the University, Dr. Currell, and his faculty enjoy the full respect and confidence of the student body here. Like most officers and faculties, they are probably too far away from detailed athletic management to know just what is going on. No doubt the first intimation of trouble which they had was the protests and proofs filed by Newberry College against Detling and Laudenslager. The president and faculty relied, of course, upon the certification of the players, and have been imposed upon in some cases. Both Detling and Laudenslager had played on the team of another college and Detling had not lived in Columbia for four years as he claimed. There is no doubt entertained here but that the athletic situation will receive a fair and vigorous investigation, and that good will come from it. Though this investigation may terminate too late to do any material good as far as this season's football is concerned.

We repeat that the one-year rule is the only protection against a condition already amply proven by the disqualification up to date of four of the University players who signed eligibility certificates.

There is no intimation in The Tiger editorial that ALL eleven men registering from without the state were "ringers"; but the prevailing public opinion that most of them are, again confirms the necessity for some code of rules to protect an institution against unjust charges.

Prior to the 1914 game, the athletic relations between Carolina and Clemson have been extremely cordial over a long period of years, so far as can be learned. Although the University had not been a member of the S. I. A. A., the Carolina-Clemson game had always been played under an S. I. A. A. contract, the terms of which have been scrupulously observed by both sides. The first cause for complaint occurred in the 1914 game when two players not qualified to do so went into the game without the knowledge or consent of the University faculty or the Clemson team. The blame was generally laid at the door of the Carolina coaches.

The cadets of this institution have always had the greatest interest in the Carolina-Clemson game. It has always been their greatest attraction at the State Fair. They would like to see it continued if this can be done on a plane of mutual confidence and good will, together with real sportsmanship. Either side can loose with good grace if the game is played according to the rules that have been agreed upon; but bitterness results if either side resorts to violations or evasions.

The Tiger is entirely content to let the matter rest in the hands of the University authorities, secure in the belief that their investigation will provide all the evidence necessary to support the position taken in the Tiger editorial of last week. It is hoped that much good will come from the present agitation, and a better understanding between the two institutions will result.

Our gratification comes from the fact that a thorough investigation of the existing conditions is being made by Carolina officials, and that they will doubtless do all in their power to straighten things out—though, we repeat, this may be done too late to do any good as far as this season's football is concerned.

We trust that these officials will soon come to see the necessity of adopting the one year rule and act accordingly, thereby insuring the probability of a clean, sportsman-like, annual Carolina-Clemson football game.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McLendon have moved to Florence, S. C., where Mr. McLendon will make his headquarters in the future. They have many friends among the students as well as the faculty who regret to see them leave, at the same time we wish them much happiness in their new home.

Miss Carey Calhoun has returned to work in Chester. Miss Calhoun is a popular and efficient member of the faculty of the Chester Graded School's.

On last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Foy. Cards were enjoyed till eleven o'clock when the lights went off and a huge ghost stalked across the room. It stopped on the stairway, and told a most dreadful story. The guests then enjoyed delicious refreshments.

HAYNE LITERARY SOCIETY.

The society was called to order by the vice-president, and was led in prayer by the chaplain.

Mr. A. H. McMeekin read a well prepared essay on "The Heroic Belgians."

The proposition: Good roads should be built and kept in good order by taxation, was then debated. Messrs. R. C. Rowell and H. C. Refo upheld the affirmative. Messrs. S. A. Anderson and J. D. Brandon defended the negative. The judges, Messrs. Armstrong, Jeffries, and Simpson, decided in favor of the affirmative. The house also decided in the affirmative's favor.

Mr. R. M. O'Neal delivered an extemporaneous speech on "Our chances of Defeating the University of North Carolina."

The secretary read a letter from Prof. Daniel in regard to the proposed triangular debate with the Citadel and the University of S. C.

Mr. W. H. Neil was given a leave of absence until the first meeting in January. Due to the fact that he teaches a class of Freshmen from 7:30 to 8:30. This makes it impossible for him to attend the meetings.

The regular program for the next meeting will be postponed. The second term officers will be elected.

THE CHEMISTRY SCIENCE CLUB.

The Chemistry Science Club was called to order for its regular meeting last Wednesday night, Nov. 3, 1915.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The regular program was then taken up.

Mr. H. E. Shiver read a short but interesting paper on "The Relative Migration of the Ions in Complex Electrolytes." This paper contained much interesting though rather complex chemistry.

The next number on the program was a "Report on 'The Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry' for August, 1915," by Mr. S. F. Thornton. Several papers from this Journal were summarized; namely, "The Potash Situation," "The Determination of Sulphate in the Soil," and "The Heating of cottonseed—Causes, and Remedy."

The club then received an unusual treat in the form of a short lecture by Prof. G. F. Lipscomb on "The Law of Mass Action." Among the topics discussed by Prof. Lipscomb were the history of this law, its present importance, its industrial application, its use in the manufacture of organic compounds, the explanation of the action of the law, etc.

Dr. Brackett then made a few very interesting remarks in regard to how the reactions which are now explained by the "Law of Mass Action" were explained before the discovery of this law.

The Junior Chemistry students were with us for the first time at this meeting. After much discussion it was decided to have one of these men to report on a journal each night and to have only two of the Seniors on for each meeting.

Dr. Brackett kindly consented to give a lecture at the next meeting.

After the announcement of the program for the next meeting the club adjourned.

INTER-COLLEGIATE DEBATES

Sometime ago the Inter-collegiate Debating Council met in Prof. Daniel's class-room. Prof. Daniel announced that Clemson had received several challenges for inter-collegiate debates. Last year we entered into a triangular debate with Wofford and the College of Charleston. They are both anxious to continue this debate.

Then Carolina and Citadel are anxious to have Clemson join them in a triangular debate. They want to arrange the matter so that no team will speak at its home college, for instance, say, let Carolina send two men to Clemson, two men to Citadel, Clemson send two to Citadel and two to Carolina, and Citadel send two to Carolina and two to Clemson. By adopting this plan the members of the faculty at each institution can act as judges in the contests, and all will be given a fair show as every team will be away from home. Carolina and Citadel think this would eliminate all partiality and in the long run would be cheaper. But the Clemson council could not fully decide on this point. They seemed to think that from the financial standpoint that it would be cheaper for one team from each college to remain at home and meet a visiting team and pay the expenses of outside judges. They considered it doubtful as to whether an audience would come out to listen to a debate in which they did not have a team.

Another challenge has been received from Erskine for an inter-collegiate debate.

The committee did not reach any definite decision as to the matter, but decided rather to let the representatives of the different societies discuss the matter with the societies and see whether they were willing to incur the expense of such active operations. This matter has already been taken up in some of the societies and will probably be discussed in the remainder soon, and the committee will probably hold another meeting within the next few days to make a more definite decision, after hearing of the action taken by the different societies.

The main question being discussed is the question of financing the matter. The six societies easily have good material for putting out the necessary teams, and therefore, we should not hold back on that ground. carry on one inter-collegiate debate outside of other affairs. This year we have six societies, and conditions in the financial world are greatly improved when compared with conditions last year, then, why can't we carry on two inter-collegiate debates. If we can arrange for these contests, some good trips will be open to society members, and considerable interest and rivalry will be stirred up in the selection of the teams, and the societies as a whole, and individuals in particular will be greatly benefitted. Heretofore there have been only one or two places open each year, and only a few would try because they felt there was no use because the places would be filled by one or two acknowledged good debaters and the contests did not stir up the interest that they should have. But if we can arrange to get the above contests there will be places for about ten good debaters, and we feel that many will enter the preliminary contests.

You society men, and especially society presidents, think over this matter and have it discussed in your societies, and instruct your committeeman so that when this council meets again they can take some definite action.

VALUE OF A TECHNICAL COLLEGE EDUCATION

A young man can make no better investment than in a technical education. Viewed merely as a matter of business, even if he has to borrow the money at interest, he will find that his increased earning capacity perhaps even the first year after graduation will be sufficient to repay the loan. It is a poor business policy to wait to earn the money necessary to pay for an education with an earning capacity only one-half or one-third that of an educated man. Every year of untrained, uneducated labor represents a direct financial loss. Every boy of ability and ambition whose parents are unable to pay for his education, should get some friend to indorse his note at the bank and begin preparation that will make for greater earning capacity and a fuller life. There is no time to lose. The world is looking for men of large ability and is willing to pay for them. Already there is a surplus of the one horsepower variety.

A college education is no longer a luxury of the rich, but more a necessity of the poor boy whose parents can give him little or nothing to start on. In earning capacity, it represents at the outset a capital of from $15,000 to $30,000, depending upon the energy, character and personality of the possessor, and the capital increases with every year of its efficient use.

There never was a time in the history of the world when expert knowledge was so much in demand, so indispensable to individual success, and so highly compensated. For the untrained await the positions of low wages, long hours and poverty.

Clemson College brings within the reach of every boy in South Carolina the benefits and possibilities of a technical education. The way is provided whereby, if he have the ambition and capacity for knowledge, he need not continue in ignorance. Here, at a cost lower than at any similar institution, can a young man obtain an education that will prepare him for self-sustaining, self-respecting citizenship.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The society was opened with prayer by the chaplain. The roll was called and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. S. M. Witherspoon presented a well prepared paper on "Hog Cholera." Reports were the made by Mr. W. E. Leslie, on "The Progressive Farmer," by Mr. A. B. Carwile, on "The Southern Cultivator," and by Mr. W. A. Pickens on "The Breeder's Gazette."

Extemporaneous speeches were made by Messrs. J. B. Kendrick, on "The Essentials of a good agricultural paper, and why college agricultural editors are nuts," by W. T. Patrick on "What the Soil Chemist has done for Agriculture," and by A. C. Dibble on "Co-operative Marketing."

The society after some little discussion decided to award diplomas to the members who qualified for diplomas under the rules which will be embodied in the constitution which is now being drawn up for the society.

A committee consisting of Messrs. R. B. Waters and W. T. Patrick was appointed by the president to have charge of the awarding of diplomas.

NATIONAL FIGURE

"Reality is the word which, perhaps, best describes the outstanding characteristic in the life and message of Raymond Robins. As one national leader puts it, 'Everything he teaches, he either has lived, or is attempting to put into practice today.'"

Starting as a poor boy in the South, he worked in the mines when very young, and seemed doomed to a limited ordinary sort of career. But the giant was in him and he persevered until he had won his law diploma from an Eastern school, and then went to California to practice, where he soon fought an important case thru the Supreme Court of the state and won his legal fame. About that time the Klondike gold fever broke out, and Mr. Robins joined the hunters. He was among the fortunate ones and dug a nice fortune from the ground, which made him financially independent. In a remarkable way he came to profess religion while in the Klondike region, and returned to the States to become a foremost national figure in social work and the adjustment of the labor problems of the country.

He came to be a most powerful public speaker, as time went by, and is now much sought after for addresses on large and important occasions.

Characteristic of the man, he agreed with the National Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, to give this fall, free of charge, to evangelistic campaigns among North American Universities and Colleges; and is holding them at such places as Princeton University, University of Iowa, University of Virginia, Vanderbilt and elsewhere. Up to the present, time, he has conducted twelve, with a result of over twelve-hundred decisions among all classes and types of college men.

It is a fine fortune to have him come to Clemson. He will be here on November 21, 22, 23, and 24.

Care should be taken by everyone that no other engagements conflict with the visit of Mr. Robins. He is going to do us a tremendous lot of good, and we clearly can do nothing less than co-operate with him in the fullest, heartiest way.

"You are not making any mistake when you book Raymond Robins. He will not disappoint you; he is a man of great heart power, as well as head power. He has a message and he knows how to deliver it. Get him a crowd and those who hear him will thank you."—W. J. Bryan.

"Raymond Robins is one of the most inspiring speakers in America. His speeches have a rare quality in that they combine two elements not often found together. Their moral appeal is very strong and very elevated; at the same time his speeches appeal to persons who most appreciate exactness and accuracy of thought, and restraint of expression. No college man ought to miss the opportunity of hearing him."—Mark Sullivan, Editor of Collier's Weekly.
